

10-Day-Old Baby Saved By Fireman

A Torrance fireman saved a 10-day-old baby Tuesday after the child's throat had become clogged.

Curtis M. Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Stark of 16907 Fonthill Ave., was taken to South Bay Hospital for observation following the rescue.

Fireman William Peterson was credited with saving the child's life. Firemen said the child's parents were attempting to clear the baby's throat when they arrived at 16910 Fonthill Ave. about 10 a.m.

Peterson took the baby, cleared its throat, and accompanied the youngster to the hospital. The child is reported in good condition today.

RALLYING ON A grassy field near the Civic Center, the protestors heard speeches by various antiwar figures while registrars collected registrations for the Peace and Freedom Party.

Darby N. Silverberg, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, denounced the presence of a "death plant right here in Torrance" at the same time when local residents were celebrating "the birth of the Prince of Peace."

The purpose of the march, he said, was to "let people know they're wrapping their food in the same thing that wraps people in flames and roasts them alive." He was referring to the fact that Dow Chemical Co. makes both napalm and Saran Wrap from the same basic ingredients.

"Personnel is doing great things in terms of teacher selection and has a very efficient operation. We have developed an extremely fine staff in both depth and breadth.

"The only area that I have been disappointed in—vocational training for our boys and girls—is going to be improved with the new occupational center which I was pleased to help initiate.

"I have no intention of allowing this contract, though it will be my last, to become a lame duck session. I'm excited about the progress we are making, and I feel that Torrance schools will rise to even greater heights; and I thank the board for its unanimous support."

OTHER SPEAKERS included Edward M. Keating, former publisher of Ramparts magazine; actress Leslie Parrish; Unitarian minister Amos C. Barstow Murphy; and Larry Sherman, treasurer of Californians for Democratic Action. They advocated a boycott of all Dow products and suggested a telephone campaign against the Torrance industrial plant.

Summing up the parade and rally, Silverberg said Monday, "The restraint on the part of the marchers and the cooperative attitude of the Torrance Police Department resulted in a basically non-violent march.

"It is unfortunate," he continued, "that certain Los Angeles newspapers found it necessary to publicize incidents which were so minor, short-lived, and well-policed as to be unworthy of comment, much less headlines."

KEEPING in stride with action items, the board approved the financing of other school projects.

A mobile closed circuit video-tape recording unit was purchased for $16,636.65 for in-service purposes, enabling self-evaluation and analysis for classroom procedures.

Kindergarten evaluation of learning potential material was approved at a cost of $6,010.53.

CENTRAL Contracting Corp. was low bidder of $508,500 for the construction of the West High School fine arts building.

The awarding of a contract to Hann Construction Co. for construction at Madrona and Hillside schools was approved after a delay of one week. The $117,300 bid was accepted without discussion.
